About Human Rights Human Dignity National Seminar

Human rights and human dignity are closely related concepts. Both ideas are intertwined in such a way that they cannot be grasped separately. The concept of human dignity is the basis for the idea that human rights are important and that everyone's rights must be respected. In this way, human dignity is considered to be the core of human rights. This seminar aims at deliberating the following questions in a larger perspective of human rights and human dignity

- Is the idea of human dignity actually universal?
- Is dignity solely as attribute of individuals, or also shared by communities?
- Does “dignity” genuinely promote “human rights” or put them in jeopardy?

The main aim of this seminar was to bring together leading academicians, researchers, Ph. D. Scholars, and students to exchange and share their experiences and research outputs on all aspects of Human Rights and Human Dignity.
